Littell likely to debut in Tuesday's doubleheader

Jarrid Denney | MLB.com | June 3, 2018

MINNEAPOLIS -- The Twins are expected to call up 22-year-old right-hander Zack Littell in the coming days in order to provide some roster flexibility for their upcoming doubleheader.

Littell will likely make his Major League debut and start one of Minnesota's games when they face the White Sox two times at Target Field on Tuesday.

The Twins have not announced the move and will be provided with a 26th roster spot for the doubleheader.

"It's not settled," Minnesota manager Paul Molitor said on Sunday. "We're looking at options. Everybody knows there are things we've done in Triple-A to help set ourselves up. We have to figure out how we want to use the 26th man or other roster moves depending on how things go today. That would probably influence how we want to go into Tuesday."

Littell's most recent outing at Triple-A Rochester came on Monday, when he tossed six scoreless innings and struck out six batters on 91 pitches. In five appearances at Rochester this season, he is 1-1 with a 2.57 ERA.

The 6-foot-4, 220-pound Littell was taken by the Mariners in the 11th round of the 2013 MLB Draft. The Twins acquired him when they traded Jaime Garcia to the Yankees in 2017.

Mauer continues rehab

Joe Mauer fielded ground balls, ran the bases and took batting practice on the field prior to Minnesota's matchup with the Indians Sunday. The 30-minute workout was the latest step as he continues to work his way back from the cervical neck strain that has kept him sidelined since May 19, when he was placed on the 10-day disabled list. It was the first time he has performed any baseball activities on the field since Thursday, when he experienced some concussion-like symptoms.

Mauer sat in the Twins dugout for the entirety of Minnesota's game after the Thursday workout, and was also in the dugout on Friday, but did not take part in any baseball activities.

Mauer hit in the batting cage at Target Field on Saturday, but did not work out on the field in order to avoid aggravating the symptoms he had experienced on Thursday. He was present in the dugout for the entirety of the 7-5 walk-off win against the Indians.

Molitor updated his first baseman's status after the win.

"Joe's doing pretty well," Molitor said. "He was out there the whole game and we're going to give him an off day tomorrow and get back in here on Tuesday to continue."

Baseball America Prospect Report – June 4, 2018

Josh Norris | Baseball America | June 4, 2018

Brandon Marsh, OF, Angels. The Angels' system is on the rise, and OF Brandon Marsh is part of that upswing. The 2016 second-rounder blitzed the competition at low Class A Burlington and earned a promotion to high Class A Inland Empire. Marsh went 4-for-5 on Sunday, his first four-hit game since last August with Rookie-level Orem.

Carter Kieboom, SS, Nationals. After Juan Soto's unusually quick rise to Washington, the biggest story on the Nationals' farm is high Class A shortstop Carter Kieboom, who has lived up to his last name in recent days. He homered against Buies Creek on Sunday, his second in as many games and third in the last four. The longball put him into a tie with teammate Rhett Wiseman for the most in the system.

Alex Kirilloff, OF, Twins. Twins outfielder Alex Kirilloff, who missed the 2017 season with Tommy John surgery, is quickly making up for lost time. The 2016 first-rounder out of high school in Pittsburgh went deep on Sunday. The blast was his 10th of the season, giving him the most in his system. He also leads Twins minor leaguers in average (.332) and slugging (.598).

Sixto Sanchez, SP, Phillies. Phillies righthander Sixto Sanchez has one of the highest ceilings of any pitcher in the game, and he showed why on Sunday. The 19-year-old twirled a seven-inning shutout with five punchouts and has allowed just two earned runs over his last four starts.

He's struck out 29 and walked just four in that span.

Prospect All-Star Team Of The Month For May
Matt Eddy | Baseball America | June 4, 2018

An all-star team comprised of prospects, based on their performance in the minors during the month of May.

The runs above average estimates are calculated by Baseball America. For batters, weighted on-base average (wOBA) is used to calculate RAA. For pitchers, runs allowed per nine innings (R/9) is used.

PA stands for plate appearances. Also available: the April prospect all-star team.

OF Alex Kirilloff | Twins
Low Class A Cedar Rapids (Midwest) | 11.7 RAA

After missing the entire 2017 season while recovering from Tommy John surgery, Kirilloff has showed no rust in the Midwest League while making his full-season debut. He hit .360/.423/.640 with five home runs in 130 PA in May.

Chattanooga Lookouts savoring meaningful games in first-half stretch run
David Paschall | Times Free Press | June 4, 2018

The Chattanooga Lookouts opened their final homestand of the Southern League's first half Sunday evening, whipping the Mobile BayBears 13-5 before an announced crowd of 2,411 at AT&T Field.

Chattanooga improved to 33-23 and maintained its first-place standing in the North Division, leaving the final 14 games of the half with plenty of meaning.

"That's what makes this fun, playing games that matter and playing games that can get you where you want to go," said Brent Rooker, Chattanooga's designated hitter Sunday. "We've got a lot of college guys in our lineup who understand what that's like, because they've been through some (NCAA) regionals and some super regionals.

Sunday's drubbing was punctuated by a nine-run fifth inning for the Lookouts, who began their outburst with Brian Olson reaching on a throwing error and LaMonte Wade launching a home run to right field. That made it 5-0, and then BayBears relief pitcher Samil De Los Santos walked all five batters he faced and also threw a wild pitch that brought in a run.

Chattanooga is hosting Mobile through Thursday night before the Lookouts close the half with a 10-game road trip to Alabama, taking on Montgomery and Birmingham. Should the Lookouts win the first-half title, they will earn the opportunity to compete for a third league championship in four years as the Double-A affiliates of the Minnesota Twins.

"It's always nice to be in a race and to be in first place," first-year Chattanooga manager Tommy Watkins said. "I try to explain to the guys that you always want to be playing for something, and we've got a chance to play for something. I feel good about where we are. These guys go out and compete every night, and they give us a chance.

"When guys have been called up, other guys have stepped up. It's all about the opportunity."

The Lookouts raced out to a 15-2 start in May but went 3-8 the rest of the month. Their struggles coincided with Wade being placed on the disabled list and Nick Gordon being promoted to Triple-A Rochester (New York), but Watkins said Wade's return last week already is being felt.

Chattanooga's scoring output Sunday was its highest of the season.

"It's fun to be in a playoff push," Lookouts center fielder James Ramsey said. "You want to close out on a good note. You're learning a process and not chasing results, but winning is the ultimate result that we're all chasing after."

Said first baseman Zander Wiel: "I would rather have kept that long streak we had going and be up 10 games right now, but these games definitely help show what you're made of and the kind of drive you have."
