MINOR LEAGUE CLIPS

Toolshed: Prospects prepping for moves

Sam Dykstra | MiLB.com | May 8, 2018

Saturday will be exactly one month into the 2018 Minor League season, and some of the game's most talented prospects are already in different Minor League locales than they were on Opening Day.

No. 46 overall prospect Justus Sheffield was just the latest one to go on the move. The news came Thursday that he's been promoted to Triple-A Scranton/Wilkes-Barre after five solid starts at Double-A Trenton. Other Top 100 Prospects, like Juan Soto (Potomac), Jesus Luzardo (Midland), Dane Dunning (Birmingham) and Stephen Gonsalves (Rochester), have all moved up their respective ladders just weeks after Opening Day. That flies somewhat in the face of the typical schedule of promoting players after or around their league All-Star breaks, when they can be properly and visibly honored for their dominance.

However, with the exception of Luzardo, there is a bit of a pattern at work here. The other four players all were repeating a level, had a good amount of previous experience at that level and got off to impressive starts in their returns. With that in mind, here are some other Top 100 Prospects who fit that criterion and could be promoted within the Minors (i.e. not including Major League debuts) early on in 2018.

Twins SS Nick Gordon, Double-A Chattanooga: The No. 79 overall prospect has been a constant feature in the "Who helped their promotion case" section of the Prospect Roundup, and for good reason. He spent all of 2017 with Chattanooga, hitting .270/.341/.408 and setting career highs with nine homers and a .749 OPS, only to return to the Southern League for another go in 2018. He's certainly started hot, posting a .340/.363/.521 line with 10 extra-base hits in 25 games while cutting down his strikeout rate from 23.2 percent to 15.7 percent. With 147 games played, Gordon, who has an above-average glove at short but has gotten time at second as well, has more than a full-season's worth of experience with the Lookouts at this point. The Twins used a similarly passive strategy with Gonsalves and moved him to Triple-A Rochester last Friday. Gordon shouldn't be too far behind.

Twins SS Royce Lewis, Class A Cedar Rapids: This is the least likely early promotion, but Lewis still ticks all of the boxes. The Twins gave the 2017 first overall pick 18 games of experience with Cedar Rapids last year and returned him to the Kernels for his first full season. The results have certainly been positive through his first 15 games back, as Lewis has hit .354/.400/.415 with six steals in 16 games, showcasing the plus hit tool and plus-plus run tool that have made him MLB.com's No. 20 overall prospect. However, the Twins were aggressive with Lewis last season with the bump to Class A, and they'd have to be even more so to move him so quickly. Lewis still doesn't turn 19 until June 5. That said, No. 100 prospect and fellow shortstop Wander Javier will need a place to play when he's recovered from the shoulder issue that's kept him out of action so far, so it's a possibility Lewis gets moved up the chain to Class A Advanced Fort Myers when that time comes. Either way, it's a good problem for Minnesota to have.

Lookouts prevail in 10th on Jackson error

Staff Report | Times Free Press | May 9, 2018

The Chattanooga Lookouts seem to have a hang for the new extra-inning format in minor league baseball.

Chattanooga pulled out a 9-8 victory over Jackson on Tuesday night at AT&T Field, capitalizing on a 10th-inning fielding error by Generals first baseman Rudy Flores that allowed Edgar Corcino to score the winning run from third. Corcino began the 10th on second base, which is now standard for each team in extra innings, and he advanced to third on a Nick Gordon ground out.

The Lookouts are 2-0 in extra innings this season, having won 7-6 in 10 innings at Mobile last Wednesday.

Tuesday's triumph resulted in the Lookouts improving to 19-13 with their seventh win in eight games. Chattanooga is now just a half-game back of Jackson in the Southern League's North Division, with the Generals dropping to 19-12.

The Generals sent the game into extra innings at 8-8 with a three-run ninth that was highlighted by a Galli Cribbs triple to right that scored Kevin Medrano and Jamie Westbrook.

T.J. White's three-run home run to right-center in the fifth inning gave Chattanooga its first lead at 5-3, and the Lookouts added a three-run seventh to go up 8-4. Tanner English drew a bases-loaded walk in the seventh for the Lookouts, which was followed by Corcino's single to center that scored Alex Rose and White.

Jackson took a 1-0 lead in the first inning with three consecutive two-out singles by Medrano, Rudy Flores and Westbrook, but the Lookouts answered with a run later in the first via consecutive two-out singles by Gordon, Zander Wiel and Chris Paul.

The Generals took a 2-1 lead in the third when Daniel Robertson doubled to left and Medrano followed with an RBI single to right, but Chattanooga pulled even later in the third on an Alex Perez single to right that followed a Paul double to left.

Elizabethton and Minnesota Twins once again talking about Joe O'Brien Field renovations

John Thompson | Johnson City Press | May 8, 2018

ELIZABETHTON — After months of inactivity, the Minnesota Twins and Elizabethton officials are again working toward renovations to Joe O'Brien Field, the home of the Elizabethton Twins of the Appalachian League.

"I thought we had a positive meeting," said Elizabethton Mayor Curt Alexander after a more than two-hour meeting held in the conference room at the Elizabethton Parks and Recreation Center on Mill Street.

Dan Starkey, senior director of ballpark development for the Twins, and Jeremy Zoll, director of Minor League operations, attended the meeting, along with lead architect Bruce Miller of the Kansas City-based Populous architectural and design firm.

Alexander attended the meeting, also with City Councilman Wes Frazier. Also at the meeting were Elizabethton Twins General Manager Mike Mains and longtime Elizabethton Twins and Elizabethton Parks and Recreation employee David McQueen.

Much of the meeting covered the electrical, water, sewer and stormwater regulations for additions and renovations to the stated, including a new clubhouse. Elizabethton department heads attended the meeting to discuss the requirements. Elizabethton officials included Rob Toney, general manager of the Electric Department, and Johann Coetzee of Elizabethton Water Resources.

Also in attendance was City Attorney Roger Day and Richard Barker of the Elizabethton Twins Task Force.

The department heads answered questions on topics ranging from electrical service to sewer and stormwater drainage and telecommunications and fiber optics.

McQueen presented Miller with many preliminary plans for the proposed layout of the field after renovations.

"It is obvious you have been doing a lot of work," Miller said of the plans.

After the meeting, the men continued less formal discussions over barbecue. More talks are scheduled for today.

The renewed talks provided hope to fans that the Minnesota Twins might remain in Elizabethton, where they have fielded an Appalachian League team since 1974.

Frazier said he recently had a conversation with a senior Twins executive and found him to be very interested in continuing the long-standing relationship that has produced 11 Appalachian League titles.
