These 2018 Draft picks are off to hot starts Jonathan Mayo | MLB.com | August 7, 2018

Two months ago, all 30 teams brought in a ton of new talent via the Draft. Those amateurs who signed have had the opportunity to go out and get their first tastes of professional baseball at a variety of levels.

What a draftee does in this first summer is far from the be-all, end-all for them as prospects. It's more about getting the ball rolling on what can be a lengthy development process. Performing well is obviously never a bad thing, giving a young pro confidence and a foundation to jump off from for the first full season that lays ahead.

Of the 20 draftees profiled a year ago, 16 of them are on a team Top 30 list. Seven are on the Top 100 list and four played in this year's Futures Game. Perhaps that's not a surprise for the first-rounders discussed as having good starts, but six of the 10 from beyond the first round have also found their way onto team lists and several players used that springboard to already reach the upper levels of the Minors.

Who from the Draft class of 2018 has gotten off to a good start? Here are 20 draftees who have been particularly impressive.

2. Ryan Jeffers, C, Twins

The UNC Wilmington product tore up the Appalachian League to earn a promotion to the full-season Midwest League. The second-round pick kept hitting there for a combined .391/.505/.603 line over 186 plate appearances.

Former college coach Dan Ramsay resigns as GCL Twins manager Mike Berardino | Pioneer Press | August 7, 2018

CLEVELAND — Dan Ramsay enjoyed being part of the Twins organization so much that he and wife Lara recently named their third child Carew James Scott Ramsay.

Around the time of his son's arrival on July 29, however, the Twins' Gulf Coast League manager resigned his post for family reasons. Ramsay, who lives in Spokane, Wash., accepted a job as an area scout with the Arizona Diamondbacks in the Pacific Northwest.

"He did a great job for us in the GCL, and we allowed and encouraged him to pursue the opportunity for family reasons," Twins director of minor league operations Jeremy Zoll said in a text message.

Matt Borgschulte, who had been a hitting coach for the GCL club, replaced Ramsay as manager after his last game on July 24. The first-place GCL team has gone 7-4 under Borgschulte after going 16-13 under Ramsay.

"(Ramsay) went home for the birth of his newest child, as we allow all staff members to do, and then he was offered the job while he was still at home in Spokane," Zoll said.

Ramsay was hired in December after spending the past nine seasons as head baseball coach at Division III Whitworth University, his alma mater. Under Ramsay, the Pirates went 183-181 and reached the NCAA Division III World Series in 2012 in Appleton, Wis.

Ramsay, who recently switched his Twitter handle from @skipper_rams to @scout_rams, has strong ties to the Pacific Northwest. GCL play began on June 18 and runs through Aug. 25.

Ramsay becomes the third minor-league manager in the Twins' system to depart since the end of last season. Class A Fort Myers manager Doug Mientkiewicz was fired after five highly successful seasons in the system, and Double-A Chattanooga manager Jake Mauer left his post to spend more time with his young family as well.

In addition, Triple-A Rochester manager Mike Quade left his post after three seasons to become the Twins' roving outfield instructor.

As Twins look to future, top prospects helping farm system shoot up the charts Dan Hayes | The Athletic | August 7, 2018

CLEVELAND — The major-league season may not be going swimmingly, but it has been an outstanding year for the Twins farm system. A banner night on Monday for Royce Lewis at Single-A Fort Myers and a promotion for Trevor Larnach is the latest round of good news.

Whether it's the breakout seasons of several of the team's top prospects or the addition of 11 more minor leaguers to the group, the Twins farm system has been very productive in 2018. Not only are the Twins pleased with what they have accomplished, but the organization has received rave reviews lately from industry analysts. The primary reason, of course, is the continued success of Lewis, outfielders Alex Kirilloff and Brent Rooker, and pitcher Brusdar Graterol, all of whom are a month from completing their first full professional seasons.

"They're having about as good of a year as you can have for a farm system," said MLB Pipeline.com senior writer Jim Callis. "Everything is clicking right now."

Where to begin?

It's hard not to point out what Lewis, selected with the first overall pick of the 2017 amateur draft, has accomplished. After putting together an impressive debut campaign, Lewis has excelled and likely exceeded even the loftiest of expectations in 2018. His worst OPS in any month this season was .747 in April at Single-A Cedar Rapids when he batted .316 and reached base at a .361 clip. Lewis worked around a couple of mid-summer mini-slumps and finished strong with the Kernels, producing a 1.042 OPS in his final 16 games before a promotion to Fort Myers. Lewis has eight multi-hit games in 21 at High A and has hit 12 homers overall this season, including two in Monday night's game in which he went 4-for-6 with five RBIs. Callis said the homer total is potentially more than most project Lewis to have and he has a better chance to stick at shortstop than initially believed. Lewis, who also has stolen 26 bases this season, is currently rated the No. 10 prospect in baseball by MLB Pipeline.

"We've had Royce in his first full season perform really nicely in Cedar Rapids and kick it into high gear right around the All-Star break and earning that promotion to the Miracle and continuing to do the things we believe he can," Twins farm director Jeremy Zoll said. "He's up to 26 steals on the season, 12 homers, controlling the strike zone really well. That's super exciting."

What Kirilloff has accomplished after missing the entirety of the 2017 season also rates high on the chart. With a little more than three weeks left in the season, Kirilloff is hitting a combined .348/.394/.584 with 16 home runs and 89 RBIs between Cedar Rapids and Fort Myers in 452 plate appearances. The 2016 first-rounder's production has even managed to catch the eye of Twins manager Paul Molitor, who noticed the difference in Kirilloff's physique from the time he was drafted to now.

"He kind of went through that body maturation the last couple of years," Molitor said last week. "He reminded me, a little different frame, but there was a period there where (Twins outfielder Max) Kepler sprouted."

There's also the growth of Graterol, whom the Twins are building up slowly and methodically, similar to how they treated Fernando Romero. Graterol, whose fastball reaches triple digits and has fantastic secondary pitches, too, has pitched so well he forced a promotion to Fort Myers. In a combined 73 1/3 innings, Graterol has 83 strikeouts with only 19 walks and a 3.07 ERA.

"You're basically talking about a 19-year-old kid with frontline stuff who's thrown a lot of strikes," Callis said. "I know they're trying to kind of monitor his innings and not push him too far. The Midwest League wasn't a challenge at all."

While the first two months of the season may have tested Rooker after an aggressive starting assignment at Double-A Chattanooga, he's made it look easy the past two months.

Rooker had a .693 OPS on May 31. Since then, the team's other first-rounder in 2017 (35th overall) is hitting .308/.397/.602 with 13 home runs and 43 RBIs in 257 plate appearances.

"(Royce) is a fast-moving guy," Baseball America senior editor J.J. Cooper said. "He's not a guy who should need five years in the minors. Rooker is coming off back-to-back great months at Double A. Kirilloff is not that far away. They have guys now, because of some good drafts and development and picking high."

Larnach, the 20th pick of June's draft, was promoted after Monday's game from Rookie League Elizabethton to Cedar Rapids. The Oregon State product hit .300/.405/.467 with two homers and 15 RBIs in 74 plate appearances before the move. He'll join catcher Ryan Jeffers, who was taken in the second round, for the Kernels' playoff push. Jeffers has a combined 1.108 OPS between Cedar Rapids and Elizabethton in 186 plate appearances.

Combine all of that with last week's trades — both Callis and Cooper think the Twins were among the non-waiver trade deadline winners — and you have a farm system that now easily ranks in the top 10 across the game. MLB Pipeline has the Twins currently rated sixth overall.

"This already was a good farm system," Cooper said. "(Lewis, Kirilloff and Graterol) are elite prospects. ... They added a significant amount of depth across the board at a variety of different positions. It gives you couple of extra opportunities because obviously some of these guys aren't going to work out."

The Twins have had several setbacks too. Shortstop Wander Javier had season-ending shoulder surgery in May, first baseman Lewin Diaz has struggled at Fort Myers (.598 OPS in 310 plate appearances) and shortstop Nick Gordon has a .533 OPS since he was promoted to Triple-A Rochester.

But there have been other positive developments that would suggest it's an overwhelmingly strong year for the system.

Left-hander Lewis Thorpe has 125 strikeouts in 103 innings and a 3.67 ERA at Chattanooga. Zoll also identified the development of Cedar Rapids pitcher Jordan Balazovic, Fort Myers lefty Jovani Moran and infielder Jose Miranda as positive steps. Balazovic, who has 67 strikeouts in 51 2/3 innings for the Kernels has continued to develop physically and throws a fastball that sits between 92-95 mph with an improved slider.

Moran has been a strikeout machine all season with 88 and 28 walks in 58 1/3 innings between the Miracle and Cedar Rapids. But since he was promoted, Moran, who is 21 and considered a fast mover, has 18 strikeouts and only one walk in 14 innings.

After a slow April, Miranda, who was just promoted to High A, is hitting .291/.340/.456 with 19 doubles and 12 homers in 374 plate appearances since.

“Coming into the year I think we were just outside a top-10 system according to most of the public ranks,” Zoll said recently. “I’ll have to regroup and do a scan once the dust has settled across the league. But it’s hard for me to not envision (the farm system) being pretty comfortably inside the top 10, something we’re really excited about top to bottom.”
